Relation of Noriyuki Yamazaki, Vice-president of Planex and the series of media coverage about livedoor

There has been a lot of ongoing media coverage about charges of violations of the Securities and Exchange Law against livedoor Co., Ltd. (Shinjuku-ku, Tokyo herein after "livedoor"), for which Noriyuki Yamazaki, Vice-president of Planex, serves as a part-time director and which is also a business partner of Planex. Our shareholders and other stakeholder must have grave concerns about relations of this matter to our business development.

We have received a number of inquiries from various quarters. We would like to explain the relationship of Noriyuki Yamazaki, Vice-president of Planex to livedoor and about how it affects our business development.

<Relationship of Noriyuki Yamazaki, Vice-president of Planex, to livedoor>

Noriyuki Yamazaki, Vice-president of Planex, joined OnTheEdge (Current livedoor Co., Ltd.) in May 2000. He assumed the position of director and took charge of technology in December 2001. Since January 2004, he has been a part-time director of Planex.

To strengthen product development and technology of Planex, Noriyuki Yamazaki assumed the position of a director in March 2005 and was elected vice-president in August of the same year.

He also doubles as president of Red SIP Inc. of U.S. As it was announced on April 14, 2005, Planex is holding Red SIP, Inc. as a subsidiary through a share acquisition for the purpose of utilizing their technology for the IP phone business of Planex in April 2005.
