PLANEX partners with FON largest WiFi community in the world

Tokyo Japan - June 9, 2006 - PLANEX COMMUNICATIONS INC. hereinafter called PLANEX announced it is cooperating with FON Wireless Limited (CEO: Martin Varsavsky, Avenida de Bruselas, Spain, hereinafter called FON) which is promoting the project providing wireless LAN community world wide.

PLANEX inked an agreement with FON to develop and make production and distribution of a router. Users could be able to enjoy FON services by using it.

In addition, the influence of our current revenue coming from this business tie-up has now been calculated. We will inform as soon as it's finished.

Recently PLANEX made an agreement with FON to develop and make production and distribution of routers which let users plug in to broad band Internet connection.

Once becoming a member of FON community called Fonero could share their wireless Internet access at home and, in return, enjoy free WiFi wherever they find another Fonero's Access Point.

By installing "FON" in their wireless LAN routers, Users can share their bands with third parties each other.

FON is the largest WiFi community in the world, originated in Spain has been aiming at increasing the number of users, especially in European countries, U.S.A., and Japan.

It's not only the platform of cost-free Wireless LAN but also looking to be an eccentrically-located Wireless LAN internet.

PLANEX is planning to launch Routers in series with no set-up procedures.
